

Simone de Beauvoir Institute
The Visiting Lecturers Committee

Wednesday, October 30, 1996 at 12h00

The Native Women Writers Series

presents

LEE MARACLE

Lee Maracle is a member of the Stoh:lo Nation of British Columbia. She is the author of I Am Woman: A Native perspective on sociology and feminism which links the teachings of her First Nations heritage with feminism. In this work, Ms. Maracle examined the differences between aboriginal and Euro-American world views and advocated a return to Native culture and laws.

Lee Maracle's latest book is Ravensong, a story of a young aboriginal woman's search for answers combined with the musing of the Raven, an important figure in Native North American storytelling.

*Place: The Lounge
Simone de Beauvoir Institute
2170 Bishop*

Information: 848-2373

Upcoming lectures: Joanne Arnott on November 8, 1996, & C.J. Taylor on December 3, 1996